Welcome, New Board Members!

Three new Board members were elected during the annual membership meeting on April 6, and will take office July 1. Let's meet them!

Bobette Bouton

Dr. Bobette Bouton is an Associate Professor of Educational Psychology for the Eriksson College of Education, where she specializes in social-emotional learning and young adolescence, specifically in the area of empathy. She launched her career in the field of education in 1995, beginning as a middle grades English teacher and transitioning to higher education as an adjunct professor for Belmont University, the University of Georgia, and Vanderbilt University. She also worked as a curriculum writer for the YMCA of San Diego County and a research project coordinator for Vanderbilt University in the area of reading learning disabilities.

Andrea Goble

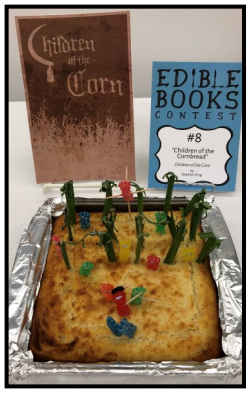
Andrea Goble is an attorney and partner at the law firm of Goble & Yow, PLLC, in Clarksville. Ms. Goble earned her undergraduate degree in economics and finance from Union University in 1990 and was admitted to the Tennessee Bar in 1994, after receiving her Juris Doctor degree from Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham, Alabama. Ms. Goble is a member of the Tower Club for APSU, the Montgomery County Bar Association, the Clarksville Chamber of Commerce, and the Association of the United States Army. She serves on the Candlelight Ball Committee for APSU, and she is a board member for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Northwest Middle Tennessee. Ms. Goble is married to Kenneth Goble, Jr., and they have five children: Cooper, Joe, Ali, Scottie, and Noah.

Amelia Allen Hartz

Amelia Allen Hartz is a lifelong resident of Clarksville and lives at Allendale, a pioneer century farm located in north Montgomery County where the Allen family raises beef cattle. After graduating from Western Kentucky University, she worked as a librarian in the Clarksville Montgomery County School System and most recently, Clarksville Academy until her retirement. She is the mother of three daughters and five grandchildren, and she is active in the Sevier Station Society of the Children of the American Revolution. She enjoys genealogy, traveling, hosting farm tours, and gardening.

Edible Books Contest

In April, APSU's Woodward Library and the Department of Communication hosted an Edible Books Contest in celebration of National Library Week. Students, staff, and faculty submitted 15 food-based creations inspired by short stories, novels, and children's books. Elvira Gallegos, culinary arts student at the Austin Peay Center at Fort Campbell, took home the two top prizes - Best in Show and People's Choice - for her edible design of The Monster at the End of This Book. Communication professor Dr. Kakali Chakrabarti won the Most Literary prize for her entry based on the play A Raisin in the Sun by Lorraine Hansberry. The Punniest prize went to "Children of the Cornbread" submitted by Jenny Harris, education librarian, and Joey Grisham, who teaches English composition and women's and gender studies courses.



Librarian Spotlight

Nancy Gibson

Nancy Gibson has lived all over the world, but has made Clarksville her home for the last 15 years. She earned a bachelor's degree in International and Area Studies from Kalamazoo College in Michigan and a Dual Masters in Library Science and Information Science from Indiana University. She began working at the Woodward Library in 2004, and, as the Social Sciences Librarian, partners with faculty to incorporate literacy and research skills into the classroom, both on ground and online. She's active in both state and national professional library associations, and was elected in 2018 to serve as a Member at Large of the University Libraries Section of the Association of College and Research Libraries. Nancy and her husband Tate are movie, museum, and Lego aficionados. She also enjoys reading historical fiction, international fiction, and nonfiction. When she is not reading or enjoying a night out with friends at the movies, she enjoys traveling for work and fun.

Dixie Dewdrop: The Uncle Dave Macon Story

John Doubler, Michael Doubler, and Dewey Browder

The Eleventh Annual Society Social took place on April 6, and began with a basket auction to raise funds for the Woodward Library. After several rounds of lively bids, the winners were awarded their prizes and a total of $1,330 was raised for the Society. After the auction, Sam Mynhier from the University Advancement Office presented Library Director Joe Weber with a check for $20,000, representing the amount donated by Society members during the year. The featured guest was Michael Doubler, author of Dixie Dewdrop: The Uncle Dave Macon Story, a biography of the Grand Ole Opry's first major superstar and Doubler's great-grandfather. Doubler was accompanied by his brother, banjo player John Doubler, who performed several of Uncle Dave's songs to a delighted crowd. The presentation was interesting and entertaining, highlighting Uncle Dave's musical abilities, loyalty, faith, and generosity, but not shying away from the darker aspects of his life like depression and alcoholism. It was a treat to learn about a music icon from this area and hear his songs performed live.
